

MEXICO CITY The Rotarians of Mexico City now have a fine building of their own. The structure cost three million pesos, and has everything for the comfort of visiting Rotarians. They have 34 rooms for the use of Rotarians and their friends. It is a friendly place managed by Enrique Aranda, who will give you a feeling of welcome as soon as you meet him. I am enclosing a folder for the use of any of your members who might plan on spending some time in the Capitol to the South of us.
